McLean, Virginia-December 11, 2014-Fraser Forbes Real Estate Services is delighted to welcome Adam Stackman as our Director of Research and Analytics. Adam brings with him over 10 years of research and analytics experience in the real estate industry having worked for Richmond American Homes in the Maryland Division and KB Home in the DC Metro Division for over ten years. With both organizations, Adam took a leading role in pro forma and market research analysis for potential land transactions and for existing communities that spanned sub-markets in both Maryland and Northern Virginia. Such research projects encompassed competitive market analysis reports, county and sub-market overview analysis and reports, resale market analysis as well as transaction memorandum for corporate approvals. Prior to joining Fraser Forbes, he most recently served as a Project Manager with Jansen Land Consulting, a Washington, D.C. based real estate consulting company that provides management services for land entitlement, development and bond release. With his extensive background, Adam is certain to be an invaluable resource for Fraser Forbes and our broad array of clients.
